Thoughts for Today's Readings

To the Point: When we envision royalty, we think of glamour and adventure, of triumph and power. Kings and queens are people set apart, people greater than others. In this gospel, Jesus offers us a radically different image. He comes in glory and power, yes, but underlying this is a radical solidarity with the least ones of his kingdom. Christ's power is used to encourage just and compassionate treatment of those we are all too quick to overlook: people who are poor, unfamiliar, and imprisoned. His power lies not primarily in shaming and banishing those who do not obey this command, but in his deep identification with those in need. We would probably claim that we would treat Jesus with the utmost respect, deserving of his unique place in the cosmic kingdom. Here he tells us, though, that we have opportunities to do so all the time. How we treat the least ones we encounter is how we treat Christ, our King.

To Experience: Even when we know better, we often seek to exert power over those with whom we have been placed in relationship. This can be especially true of the children in our lives, who we often seek to control. But they, too, can bear Christ to us, and as "least ones" in our midst give us an opportunity to enact compassion and justice toward our very King.

1. The gospel reveals that Jesus calls us to compassionate care of the marginalized and vulnerable. What opportunities might you be overlooking in your life to pay homage to Christ the King?
2. There is some harshness in the judgments passed by Christ in the gospel; how does this make you feel?
3. In relationships where you hold power, how can you enact Christlike justice toward those who are less powerful?

TO THE LIFEBOATS

How about that Pope Francis everyone? Have you ever seen a guy who liked to rock the boat so much? Certainly, seems from some of the comments I've heard from people, and the internet, that Pope Francis has rocked the boat really well this time with the dismissal of Bishop Strickland.

In this secular world today of "There is no absolute truth." Anything goes. To what we deem as bad leadership in the Church, seems to me that people are worried that the boat (The Catholic Church) is taking on water and going to sink. People are ready to abandon the boat before she goes down.

The first thing you need to realize is the boat is not going to sink; it can't. It's unsinkable. We have had bad captains, bad navigators in the past. That is undeniable. But Jesus told us the boat will not sink when He said to Peter, "And I tell you Peter, on this rock I will build My Church, and the gates of hell will not prevail." So even if you deem the navigational skills of our leadership to be wanting, do not doubt the words of Jesus, and seaworthiness of the Catholic Church.

Our faith should not be determined by decisions of our leaders. Our faith is in Jesus the Christ. We don't come to Mass every Sunday and Holy Days of Obligation just because we like Father Bill. And we don't give praise and worship to our Pope, our Bishop, or even the Deacon do we?

No, we come to give thanks to God, to give praise and worship to God, and to receive Jesus even if we don't like our priest, or we think the Bishops and Pope are wrong in their decision.

So, if you think the seas are turbulent right now, and your faith is being shaken, don't get out of the boat and try swimming on your own. If you want to calm the seas and strengthen your faith you have to be persistent in your faith and do your part before making the call of a sinking ship.

Do you have a good personal prayer life? Do you not just go to Mass and Holy Days of obligation, but do you participate? Mass is not the time for silence. Do you participate in the Sacraments, especially confession so you can get the graces from the sacrament of the Eucharist? Have you fed the hungry, clothed the naked? Did you care for the ill and visit those in prison? This is what gives us the strength to stay with the boat.

We have to be careful that our pride does not lay a smoke screen when we try to navigate through these times. Remember pride can be a gift from the devil. The first of the deadly sins, pride opens the door for all the other deadly sins.

Instead pray for the gifts of the Holy Spirit: wisdom, understanding, counsel, fortitude, knowledge, piety, and fear of the Lord. These gifts are the oil that will light our navigational lamps so we can set a better course in our life.

So before we declare the boat is sinking and bail out, before we point an accusing finger, let us make sure we do what we are supposed to do. Believe the Words of Jesus. Stay in the boat and live our faith. Jesus will separate the goats from the sheep for us.

Viva Cristo Rey,
Deacon Gary

Advent Gospel Challenge

There are twenty-four chapters in the Gospel of Luke. Each day, beginning December 1, read one chapter from the Gospel of Luke. By the time we get to Christmas Eve, you will have a better understanding of Jesus and His ministry. Maybe, by December 24, we will wholeheartedly praise God with the angels and declare, "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, goodwill toward men!" (Luke 2:14).

As you read the Gospel, keep notes in a journal on specific highlights that stand out to you in the reading. That is the challenge: read and learn about Jesus.

Let's take this trip together through Luke's account of the life and ministry of our Lord, our Savior, the Messiah, the King!
