Thoughts for Today's Readings

To the Point: The Pharisees attempt to entrap Jesus with a trick question: Naming one commandment as the greatest would devalue the others by comparison, making it sound as if he does not value God's word in its fullness. Instead, Jesus shows that he understands

God's word far more deeply than those who are tied to reading the law literally. He names not one of the ten commandments but one that comes after them in Deuteronomy. He reveals that fulfilling the law is not about servile deference to what is written, but about love. If our hearts are formed in love, the other commandments will follow, flowing forth from our inner being instead of needing to be forced as outer actions. The second commandment, too, can be named as secondary because it also flows from love of God. If we truly love God, so will we love our neighbor.

To Experience: In this life, the moral teachings of the church will always be at times burdensome and challenging. This is simply part of being human; until we are fully united to God in heaven we will not be acting from hearts perfectly formed in love. We can, though, try to reframe our understandings of these teachings; while they are often poorly taught and uncompassionately preached, they are meant to help us live in the love Jesus calls us to.

1. Jesus asks us for our whole selves: heart, soul, and mind. What parts of yourself do you find challenging to give to God in love?
2. Which of the church's moral teachings is most challenging for you right now? Is there a way to see it as an invitation to form your heart in the love God calls us to? If not, bring this to God, who sits with us in all our suffering.
3. Choose one of the images for God from the psalm and sit with it for a while. How does it resonate with your usual working image of God? How does it challenge it or help it to expand?

Year of Mary October 1, 2022 to December 8, 2023

"Even death is illumined and can be experienced as the ultimate call to faith, the ultimate 'Go forth from your land' (Gen 12:1), the ultimate 'Come!' spoken by the Father, to whom we abandon ourselves in the confidence that he will keep us steadfast even in our final passage."

Pope Francis, Encyclical letter Lumen fidei, paragraph 56

Dear Brothers and Sisters,

Our review of the Catholic teachings in regards to funerals continues.

The last main reason that we celebrate a funeral is to comfort those who mourn. This comfort is more than mere sentimentality. Gathering as a Christian community, we are buoyed by our shared hope in the Resurrection, and express the very real human need always to turn to God in times of crisis.

Understanding these three reasons for celebrating a Christian funeral, helps us to understand why the celebration of the Christian funeral is divided out over three liturgical celebrations: the Vigil, the funeral Mass, and the Committal.

The funeral vigil and period of visitation is the primary place to offer consolation to those who mourn, and celebrate the blessings that the deceased received during his or her life. The Vigil and period of visitation is traditionally celebrated in the home of the deceased. This has not been a custom in the local area for over a century, but highlights the essentially domestic character of the Vigil and period of visitation. This is the primary place for family members and friends to share memories and stories. This is also the most appropriate moment for a eulogy or other words of remembrance.

Although the majority of funeral visitation in both parishes take place in our churches immediately preceding the funeral Mass, there can be a tension between the respect and reverence that is required in a sacred space, and the informality of a visitation. In addition, many people find it difficult to take time off from work to pay their respects and offer consolation to the mourners when the only period of visitation immediately precedes the funeral Mass.

For both these reasons, it would be praiseworthy to give serious consideration to having a funeral Vigil and visitation the evening before the funeral Mass at a funeral home. In the more informal setting of a funeral home, people can more freely share stories and memories, greater physical comfort can be offered to those who mourn, and there is a greater opportunity for friends and acquaintances to offer their consolations and respects. Since a Vigil is not a sacramental celebration, it can be led not only by a priest, but also a deacon, and even a properly trained member of the lay faithful.

We will take a break from our reflection on Catholic funerals next week, but will continue the following week with a review of the Catholic funeral Mass and Committal.

*Memento mori,
Father Bill*

Unexpected St. Gregory Kitchen Need

During recent usage of the stand mixer in the kitchen, it was noticed to not be running smoothly any longer. It was determined that there are numerous problems with the machine and is not worth the money for repair. The stand mixer has been used countless hours for many, many years and has served us well.

The mixer continues to be used on a regular basis throughout the year along with intense use at the Annual Fall Feast. The Finance Council has approved the purchase of new machine at a cost of $3,554. The machine was delivered this week.

This is an added expense that is not in the current budget. Donations are being accepted to help defray the cost to the parish budget line and can be brought to the office or placed in the collection basket at Mass. Thank you.

Indoor Walking Available SG Parish Center is open for walking. Hours are Mon-Thurs 8am-noon and Mon-Wed 12:30pm-4pm (please call in advance for the afternoon to guarantee access).

Saint Medals and Prayers

All students are required by the Diocesan Religious Education Curriculum to learn specific prayers at each grade level. Catechists incorporate them in their classes. Families are also encouraged to pray them together at home.

When students are able to pray them together as a group—they earn a saint medal. Keep practicing your prayers!

There is still time to enroll for the 2023-2024 year.
Call the office (773-2511) for information.
