Thoughts for Today's Readings

To the Point: The “other nine” lepers get a little bit of a bad rap. Jesus commanded them to go to the priests; the one who returns is disobeying. The others were probably eager to have their restored health witnessed by the priests so that they could return to communal life. They were intent on their task; this isn't a bad thing. But the tenth leper is commended because he let God interrupt him. We can often miss the movements of God in our lives because we are set in our ways. We make our little plans and can get stuck in them. But when God moves in this leper's life (as God moves in all our lives), he stops and notices. He turns back and gives thanks. He lets God change his plans.

To Experience: God's movements in our lives are not often as obvious as a sudden and complete healing from leprosy. It can take practice to be able to see God at work. But when we do see God's activity, we ought to let ourselves be interrupted. Stopping what we're doing is hard; we're very accustomed to just going about our work and lives. But when God breaks through, we honor that – and help ourselves see it again the next time – by stopping and giving thanks.

1. Take a moment to join with the Samaritan leper in gratitude. What are you thankful for today?
2. Talk about a time that God broke through your everyday realities to surprise you. How did you recognize God at work? How did you respond to the surprise?
3. The gospel and the first reading both show that God's love is not limited to God's chosen people; God is ultimately for all. How has a person or group outside the church shown you the love of God?

Worship and Thank God Like the Samaritan

In the Gospel of this Sunday, we find that Jesus is healing the ten lepers. Among the ten healed by Him, only one – a Samaritan – returns to give thanks. This is a wonderful event for gratitude. But the Gospel writer, Luke, invites us to go deeper into the passage.

The setting matters: Jesus is traveling “between Samaria and Galilee,” a borderland. It is precisely in these in-between places that the marginalized often meet Christ. Lepers were outcasts, excluded both socially and religiously. Yet Jesus does not avoid them – He draws near and hears their cry for mercy.

Jesus sends them to the priests. According to Leviticus 14, it was the priest's duty to certify a person as clean so they could return to society. The nine Jewish lepers obey the Law – they do what is required. But the Samaritan, an outsider, goes beyond the Law. He recognizes that healing is not just a ritual matter, but a gift that comes from God Himself through Jesus. That recognition transforms his healing into salvation.

The Samaritan's response is key: he “turned back, glorifying God with a loud voice, and fell at Jesus' feet giving thanks.” The language Luke uses – glorifying God and giving thanks – is the language of worship. The Samaritan doesn't just show gratitude; he worships. His thanksgiving becomes an act of faith, acknowledging Jesus as the true source of healing and salvation.

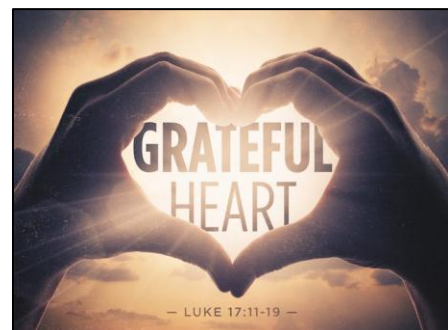

Notice Jesus' words: “Stand up and go; your faith has saved you.” All ten were healed, but only one was saved. Faith is more than receiving blessings – it is recognizing the Giver, glorifying Him, and allowing gratitude to lead to conversion of heart.

This Gospel challenges us: Do we treat God's blessings merely as gifts to be used, or as encounters with the Giver who deserves our thanks and worship?

God Bless,
 Father Josuva

This year's theme – "Missionaries of Hope Among the Peoples" – is a call to embody the love of God, poured into our hearts by the Holy Spirit. Your offering provides hope where despair too often dominates – through the building of churches, formation of seminarians and religious sisters, healthcare clinics, and Catholic Schools. Use the envelope enclosed in today's bulletin to select where your gift should be used: Propagation of the Faith, Latin America, or Eastern Europe.

October: Pregnancy & Infant Loss Awareness Month

Our new St. Gianna Garden in the SG Cemetery, a place of rest for the earthly remains of preborn children, will be dedicated on Sunday, October 26 following a Mass of Remembrance for Pregnancy and Infant Loss.

Please contact either of the parish offices by October 17 if you would like a votive lit in honor of the memory of the life and loss of a preborn child.

"We are called to be signs of hope to all people, especially those whose goodness, value, and dignity are undermined. As members of the Body of Christ, we carry this hope with us as we continue Jesus' mission on earth... We have been entrusted with a message of hope for the woman who finds herself unexpectedly pregnant or for the man diagnosed with a terminal illness. At these challenging moments, we must bring God's presence, witnessing to His love, and inspiring a renewal of hope in those whose hearts are burdened."
